

Knowing Your Rights & Requirements

Disclaimer

I am in no way a legal authority on any of the 50 states regulations and requirements for home schooling laws. I be 100% clear and precise on your legal regulations and requirements you will need to do a little leg work on your own. The best source that I have for you find out this information is from the HSLDA website. Also, another excellent source of first hand knowledge is to join a local/state home schooling group on Facebook. Families there will be able to help you navigate the ins and outs of your requirements.

Knowing Your Rights & Requirements

Common Terms You May See

Cumpulsary Age

Regulations

Assessment

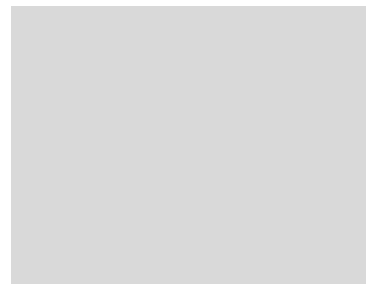

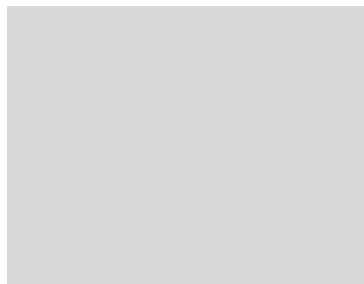

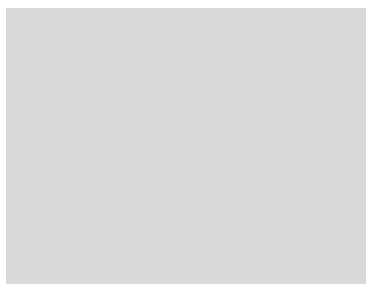

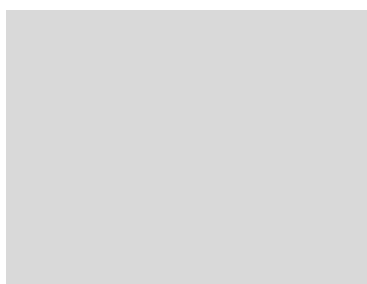

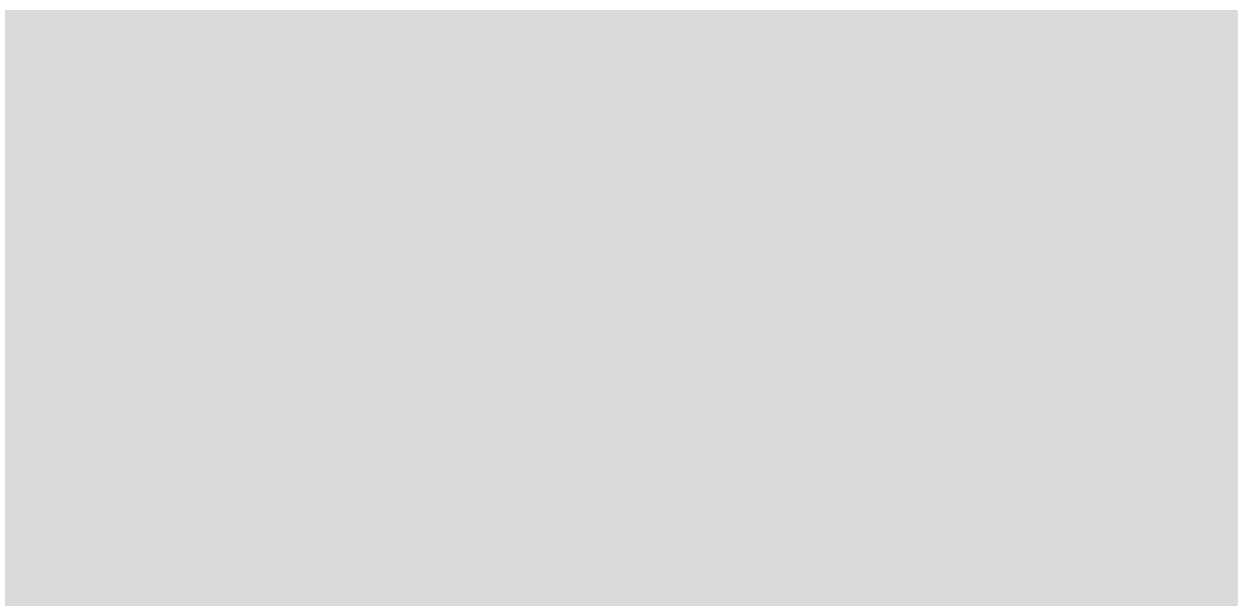

1st Thing

Is your child currently enrolled in public school?

If so, you will need to formally withdraw your child from the public school system to avoid truancy and other stipulations.

What is required for your state can be found on the HSLDA website

Use the rest of this work book along with the HSLDA website to find out the requirements for your state.

Some General Requirements

What are the age requirements for your state?

How do you give notice to the state, and how often?

Some General Requirements

How many days and how many hours are required?
(how will these be recorded and reported?)

Are you required to do testing or assessments?
(When?/ How?)

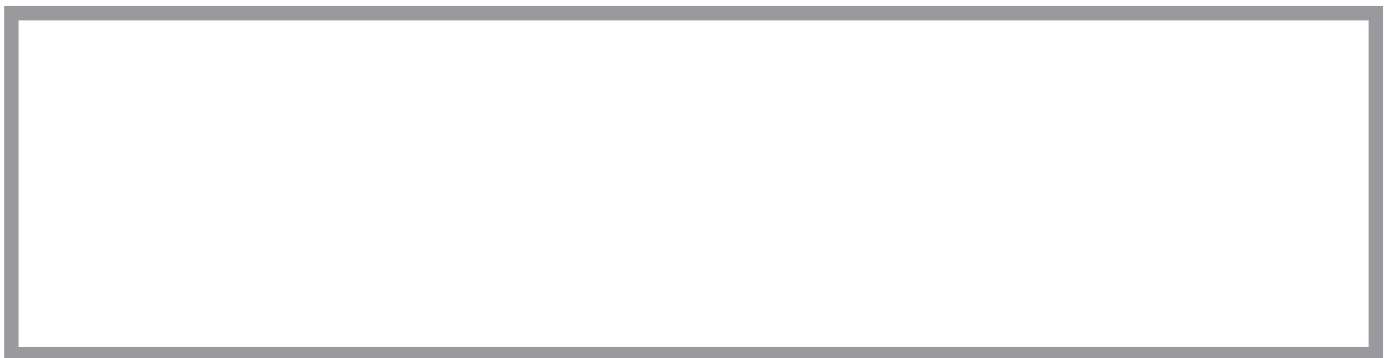

What Subjects Might You Be Required to Teach

Reading

Writing

Math (use of numbers)

Physical Education/ Health

(Bike Safety, Drug/Alcohol/Tobacco Education, CPR)

History

(Social Studies, Government, Citizenship, State History, Patriotism, Civics, Geography)

Language Arts

(American Literature, other Literature, Spelling, Speech)

A large, empty rectangular box with a gray border, intended for students to write their responses for the Language Arts section.

Other Courses Required

A large, empty rectangular box with a gray border, intended for students to write their responses for the Other Courses Required section.

Other Possible Requirements

- What records will you be required to keep (attendance/hours, curriculum choices, work samples)
- Will you be required to have a portfolio
(what do you have to include)
- Are their qualifications for parents?
- Do you need to operate under a co-op or umbrella school?

